

President's Daughter and Countess of Warwick Both Going On the Stump in Ohio Campaign

MRS. LONGWORTH

Titled English Woman Will Make Her First Political Speech for Socialist Congress Candidate To-Day.

The Countess of Warwick, England's noted Socialist agitator, is to become a stump speaker, with Alice Roosevelt-Longworth as an opponent, and has projected herself into the thick of the Congressional campaign in the Eighth Ohio in behalf of E. G. Wharton, of Kenton, the Socialist candidate.

The Countess is scheduled to make her first speech to-day, and will not only release the flood of her oratory in one of the hottest American political campaigns on record but will also loosen her purse strings in the effort to get a real Socialist into the United States Congress, although in so doing she will be pitted against the President's daughter.

Both Mrs. Alice Roosevelt-Longworth and the Countess are to make speeches during the stress of the contest, it is announced, but Mrs. Longworth will not mount the raging stump until fall.

Representative Longworth has told Ralph D. Cole, Republican nominee, that he and Mrs. Longworth would make speeches in the district for him, and Ohio is looking forward to the unique campaign with a great deal of interest.

The lucky flipping of a coin broke in Cole's favor a deadlock that had caused a second convention, and owing to the bitter fight being made against him Congressman Longworth decided to offer the services of himself and wife in behalf of the Republican nominee.

It is not given out what the Countess of Warwick will contribute to the campaign, but her tour of the district begins at once.

RESCUED FROM NAPHTHA LAUNCH DRIFTING TO SEA

Three Amateurs From New Brunswick Were Taking it Home From Jamaica Bay

Possessed of an ambition to sail the raging seas, Peter and William Schmidt and Julius Schroeder, bakers, of New Brunswick, N. J., went to Jamaica Bay yesterday and invested in a naphtha launch fourteen feet long called the Katie B. That the three men are comfortably surrounding a stove in a home at Stapleton, Staten Island, to-day instead of being lifeless in the Atlantic Ocean is due to the fact that Capt. B. D. Potter, of the tug Reliance, had sharp eyes.

The New Brunswick amateur mariners, after purchasing the launch, spent considerable time in cementing good fellowship with the former owners. It was midnight when they put out of Jamaica Bay aboard the Katie B., bound for New Brunswick by way of the ocean, Staten Island and the Harlem River. It must have been taken to any but professional buccaners that a storm was on the way. But what came the two Schmidts and Schroeder for signs? They had the Katie B.

Yodling merrily, they headed out through the inlet, into the ocean, and set a course for the light they could see flashing on Atlantic Highlands. They had proceeded a couple of miles when the engine broke down. Only two of the three could swim, and the three who were being as machines, had taken it apart so thoroughly that they were unable to put it together again. In the meantime a fifty-mile gale had sprung up and the waves were tossing the little launch like a cork.

Abandoning their efforts to repair the engine, the three New Brunswickers occupied themselves bailing the boat. Soon Peter Schmidt succumbed to exhaustion and exposure and dropped a faint. His brother followed him and Schroeder was left with the responsibility of keeping the little launch afloat. The tide had swept them in close to Manhattan Beach and had turned and was sweeping them out to sea. The Katie B. was half full of water.

Capt. Potter, on the Reliance, returning from Fire Island, where he had been engaged in wrecking work on the stranded German ship Peter Rickmers, was making for New York and happened close to shore. Through the ICE TRUST MEN ON RACK. FRIENDS SAY HE DID NOT KILL ROSENHEIMER.

Grand Jury Also Delves Into Mass of Documentary Evidence.

Justice Goff's Special Grand Jury resumed its investigation of the Ice Trust to-day. Attorney-General Jackson and his special deputy, James W. Osborne, both took part in the presentation of evidence.

Three minor officers of the American Ice Company, who were questioned yesterday, were on the rack again to-day. They were asked to identify and set out a mass of documentary evidence which Mr. Osborne has collected.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., May 7. — Friends of Dominic Monaco in this city will endeavor to clear him of the charge of murdering Julius T. Rosenheimer, the wealthy manufacturer of Peasam Manor, for which crime he is now awaiting trial in Westchester County. Monaco sent a notice of the month of June, 1927, in this city and vicinity, and his friends believe they will be able to show that he was here on the night of the murder.

Carriages will be in waiting at North Garden to carry the party to Pine Knot, where arrangements for the comfort of the visitors have been made.

CARNEGIE GIVES $200,000.

Andrew Carnegie yesterday made announcement to the Mechanics and Tradesmen's Association of New York City through its president, J. T. Getty, a meeting held in the association's building, at No. 29 West Forty-fourth street, of a gift of $200,000 to be added to the endowment fund of the association, which brings it up to the total aimed at $570,000. A bust of the ironmaster was unveiled.

'CHAMPION LEMON GUY' IN POLICE GALLERY AT LAST

Tarbo's Picture Taken When No Friends with a Pull Were Around.

Frank Tarbo's rapidly aging face has been added to Inspector McCarthy's photograph gallery of his friends and acquaintances at last!

Tarbo is sixty years old and is known on both sides of the Atlantic as the "champion lemon guy." He has been arrested times innumerable according to the police, but never has the Detective Bureau been able to hold him long enough to pose him for a picture.

Frank has many friends around Forty-second street and Broadway, and these chaps have not failed to land him back on the street as quickly as possible after an arrest.

After following Tarbo all night Detective-Lieutenants Val O'Farrell and Frank Peabody picked up Tarbo in front of the Hotel Metropole shortly after 6 o'clock to-day. Few persons saw the arrest and no one was on hand to assist Tarbo. The detectives hurried their man to the Central Of-rice, and before orders could be issued for Tarbo's release, pictures had been made.

Inspector McCarthy said later that Tarbo was charged with being a suspicious person. As far as he knew, there is nothing of a criminal nature against Tarbo on the police books. The consulting brothers later volunteered to go to the front for Tarbo, with the result that he was released.

He entered the Mulberry street station wearing a high silk hat, immaculate white gloves, an English frock coat and patent leathers with spats. Tall and straight, Tarbo presents a striking appearance. With the aid of considerable jewelry which he wears, Tarbo easily gives the impression of the luxury and leisure.

FINELL'S BODY FOUND.

Coast Guard Captain Was Drowned Two Weeks Ago.

The body of Capt. George Finell, of the coast guard cutter Daniel, who was drowned two weeks ago while the boat was at Bridgeport, Conn., was recovered to-day and removed to O'Rourke's morgue in Bridgeport.

Capt. Finell was a member of the Thimblewater Boatmen's Protective Union, local No. 437. Capt. Finell had relatives in Brooklyn, but their address is unknown to his comrades in the union. Unless they claim the body at Bridgeport, the body will be buried by the Thimblewater men.
